

10 great ways DHA can help your organisation

2015-06-26 15:12

DHA provide a range of communication, advocacy and research services to ensure not-for-profit and public sector bodies achieve their policy goals. Click the link below for more details.

 DHA 10 great ways we can help you.pdf \(692.3 KiB\)

Or see below

DHA provides research, policy and communications expertise to help people in the public and not for profit sectors understand, challenge and change the worlds around them.

We are experts in:

Research and policy

Our research and policy expertise helps charities, trusts, NGOs and public sector agencies identify opportunities, shape policy and navigate complex consultations and bidding processes. We deliver stakeholder research, impact assessments and technical bidding support and evaluation.

Strategy and development

We create communication strategies that frame messages, policy goals and compelling narratives in reality to give you the best possible platform for changing attitudes and behaviour.

Communications and advocacy

We provide compelling campaigns, advocacy and communication support so you can build relationships with the stakeholders that matter most to you. We give round-the-clock press and social media support, launch reports, provide press office functions, write and place media articles and spot opportunities within major print and online media to get your voice heard.

Skills and training

We design and deliver bespoke communications training for groups of all sizes on everything from media skills to report writing and campaigning. We've worked with everyone from the National Police Improvement Agency to the international campaign group Global Witness.

Design and digital

We produce inspired design for campaigns, websites, print and branding. We also deliver infographics to help hammer messages home and inspiring video using film, animation and graphics content.

www.dhacommunications.co.uk

